North Eastern Tyres & Exhausts

North Eastern Tyres and Exhausts comprises of three divisions – North Eastern Tyre and Autocare; North East Wholesale and HiQ. The company wanted to invest in a management training programme to support its long-term growth plans across the company.

Amacus designed a training programme to equip directors, senior managers and middle managers with the skills and expertise to support the company growth and rapidly expanding workforce.

Practical workshops were delivered covering key management skills such as: people management, team development, delegation, motivation and time management.

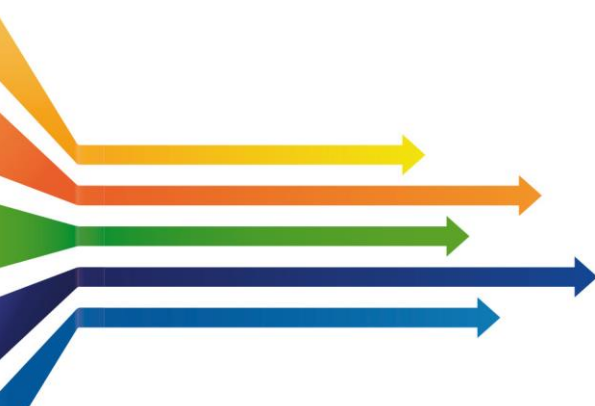

The training has proved a resounding success with significant signs of improved communication between teams, between managers and increased understanding of the challenges and ways of working. There has also been an increase in team effectiveness as people met regularly throughout the workshop programme, creating a better environment to share information.

Managing Director Gavin Marshall said: “The training is already paying dividends. I’m already seeing evidence of improved communications throughout the company, better people management and stronger buy-in of what we want to achieve”
